David v Goliath

Once again, the historian and author, David Irving, is poised to do battle with probably the most powerful organisation in the world. His appeal against the decision made by High Court judge, Sir Richard Gray, in April last year, to reject his claims of defamation. This case is not just David Irving against Deborah Lipstadt but David Irving against all those who have a vested interest in preserving the authorised version of the Holocaust. In this battle Mr Irving will be confronting the World Jewish Congress and the State of Israel, both of whom have benefited extensively from what Norman Finkelstein has so rightly called an industry.

To even fight this battle, David Irving needs MONEY. We cannot hope to match the six million dollars raised by his opponents but we can and must help raise the £100,000 that he needs to make his challenge.

Please help.

Special Treatment?

It was noted in the same week that statistics revealed hospital patients were often kept waiting for treatment on trolleys parked in corridors for up to 54 hours. A New Labour Minister, Keith Vaz, collapsed and was taken to London's St Thomas's hospital. Not surprisingly, Mr Vaz was immediately found a bed in a ward.

New Labour, New Privileges.

A Time For Unity

With a General Election certain to be called sometime this year, it is more vital than ever that nationalist parties in Britain conjure up a degree of unity not seen before. Another election victory for New Labour will see the end of the nationalist fight in Britain. Political correctness will rule. Holocaust denial will be a criminal offence as will any serious attempts to criticise the multi-racial, multi-cultural face of Britain.

You have been warned.

Britain: For Sale To The Highest Bidder

With Peter Mandelson's relationship with the Hinduja brothers passport applications still unclear and the question did Keith Vaz interfere with 50 passport applications from Asians left unanswered, Britons must wonder if the government has a hidden agenda operating, which is deliberately designed to erode the identity and culture of our indigenous population.

The latest plans from Immigration Minister, Barbara Roche, will only confirm our worst fears. The plan is to admit over 100,000 more immigrants into Britain to fill what she claims is a skill shortage. This despite Home Office figures showing that over 6000 illegal immigrants are still arriving in Britain every month.

Whilst most Britons will find it hard to believe, there has actually been a ban on primary or economic immigration into Britain for the past 30 years it is claimed.

But the recent announcement to allow "restricted" immigration into Britain follows the suggestion by French Socialist Minister, Jean-Pierre Chevenment, that the EU should admit seventy-five million economic immigrants into Europe to boost falling birth rates. "Europe must be prepared to become a racially hybrid society by 2050", he told a meeting of European ministers earlier this year.

Predictably, New Labour has embraced this proposal with enthusiasm. Their plan will allow immigrants into Britain if they "have good ideas for starting businesses, or have £200,000 to invest". In other words, British citizenship will be sold to those that can afford it!

Although she is introducing the plan under the guise of skill shortages, Ms Roche has admitted that she expected work permits to be granted "where a firm job offer had been made, irrespective of whether or not the proposed employment sector had specific skill requirements". Economic migrants with IT skills, or qualified doctors and nurses, will be allowed to settle permanently in Britain with their families.

Figures from the Office for National Statistics seem to undermine the argument that immigration is needed to boost Britain's ratio of workers to pensioners. They reveal that although the ratio is likely to drop in the next twenty years, the balance will be restored after that, as large numbers of currently non-working children will have entered the labour market.

The current skills shortage could and should be remedied by increased training within our schools. With a change of direction needed by politically correct teachers who prefer teaching Marxist doctrine and lessons on the perception of racism rather than career opportunities. Other skill shortages such as those in the Health Service could easily be remedied by increased government subsidies to British student doctors and nurses and a realistic pay structure after qualification.

Our culture and identity is not for sale. Not for £200,000, nor for thirty pieces of silver!

David Irving Appeal: Court Date Set For June

Historian and author, David Irving, is to continue his battle for Real History at the Court of Appeal in London on June 11th. Readers will recall that Mr Irving lost his case of defamation against US-based author, Deborah Lipstadt, and publishers Penguin Books in April last year.

Historian and author, David Irving

At the original trial Mr Irving chose to represent himself. A decision that he now accepts was ill judged. For the appeal, Mr Irving intends to appoint a full legal team. It is expected that Lipstadt will continue to be represented by Anthony Julius, the eminent lawyer who represented the late Princess Diana in her high profile divorce case. Mr Julius does not come cheap but with a defence fund estimated to be in the region of six million dollars and further financial backing available from the World Jewish Congress, Edgar Bronfmann and movie mogul, Stephen Spielberg, she can easily afford the most expensive legal representation.

For his part, Mr Irving hopes to call two new witnesses on his behalf. One is the German scientist, Germar Rudolf and another who he is refusing to name at present.

The first skirmish of the forthcoming battle has already been won by his legal team by obtaining more time to prepare their case. The original trial date of March 19th has been put back until June 11th. Extensive media interest is expected as vital sections of the authorised version of the Holocaust being challenged for accuracy. Both the German and Israeli governments are expected to send official observers to the trial, the result of which could have massive implications for both countries.

The expected cost of the appeal will be in the region of $200,000 of which he has only managed to raise one-quarter so far. It is vital that Mr Irving receives not just the goodwill of those that care about accuracy in history but the financial backing that he needs as well.

Donations can be sent (anonymously if preferred) in cash or by cheque to ... David Irving, 81, Duke Street, London. W1K 5PE.

Asylum Bill Reaches £835 million

Asylum seekers are costing the country a staggering £835 million pounds every year the government has finally admitted. Almost 100,000 refugees, 2000 every week, have arrived in Britain and claimed asylum in the past 12 months. This represents a ten- percent increase on 1999.

The cost of keeping them equates to £34 for every family in Britain

Not only is the Government failing to prevent bogus asylum seekers from entering Britain, they cannot even enforce the law specifically introduced to deter those who bring them in.

A total of £8.3 million is still owed in unpaid fines by hauliers who have allowed illegal immigrants to stow away in their vehicles.

White Police Officers To Sue Force For Racism

In a welcomed fight back against politically correct "Positive Discrimination", six white police officers are suing Nottinghamshire police force for racial discrimination after an Asian officer was promoted ahead of them.

The officers, all sergeants, have accused their employer, Nottinghamshire police authority, of changing agreed promotion procedures to assist Satinder Sharma become an inspector despite achieving poorer results in selection tests. The white officers are convinced procedures were changed so that the Notts police could meet their politically correct ethnic minority targets.

The officers allege that, despite Sharma not even making the forty-four-man shortlist for promotion, he was allowed to be promoted above officers who had finished midway in the shortlist. A senior officer has been accused of deliberately changing the procedures to facilitate this.

Of the fifty-five officers who applied, twenty-two were eventually promoted including both of the Asian applicants. The case is likely to go to an Industrial Tribunal later this year.

In a bizarre twist, an Asian officer is also claiming racial discrimination against Notts police for being promoted after receiving "priority treatment". The officer, Chief Superintendent Anil Patani, told a Nottingham Industrial Tribunal that he had been initially refused promotion but that the decision had been changed after he had been promised priority treatment. Supt Patani claims that as a result of getting preferential treatment he had lost the respect of colleagues who thought he had only been promoted because of his colour.

The hearing has been adjourned for the panel to formulate their judgement.

electoral fraud in local elections. Isaac Leiberman, a Liberal Democrat, and Zev Liebowitz, a Tory, worked together to fraudulently boost the numbers of proxy votes cast in the 1998 local elections for the Hackney area of East London. Through their efforts there was a 2000% increase in the number of proxy votes cast. Amongst the methods employed by the crooked pair were non-existent voters created with addresses in an empty derelict houses, and several pensioners tricked into believing they were signing a petition to improve refuse collection when in fact they were signing over their proxy votes to the co-religionists. Two other orthodox Jews from the same constituency face a retrial for similar offences after a jury failed to reach verdicts.

REPLY FROM A REVISIONIST IN EXILE

JÜRGEN GRAF REFUTES ARAB PETITION CONDEMNING HISTORICAL REVISIONISM

On April 5, the Swiss revisionist, Jürgen Graf, now living in exile in Iran, addressed an open letter to the Palestinian “spokesman” and puppet of Israel, Edward Said, after Said had signed a petition condemning revisionists as “falsifiers of history”. Said was one of fourteen Arab intellectuals who recently betrayed their people with this sop to Zionism.

We reproduce the entire text of Graf’s condemnation of this act of treachery against the true Palestinian people. He is now in exile in Iran, a country demonised by the “enlightened” West and vilified as an intolerant society. In several European countries, criticism of the Holocaust legend is regarded as a “hate crime” with the penalty of imprisonment.

It is a strange irony that a strict Islamic state should offer shelter to a man from the secular West ... a true asylum seeker, persecuted by his own government and the governments of other European states simply because he questioned the authenticity of Holocaust orthodoxy. That some Palestinian academics have sided with the Zionist version of world history leaves many to ponder the validity of their credentials as exponents of the historical Palestinian cause. For them to side with the Zionist state in this fashion, colluding with the global campaign to stifle free expression, virtually stains their hands with the blood of their own people.

Graf puts his case forcefully for the entire world to see. Although, predictably, the Western media ignored his open letter, many newspapers in several Arab countries were quick to pick it up and give it the attention it deserved. The reason so many of our own people in Britain and the rest of Europe appear oblivious to the sinister developments concerning the suppression of free speech is that our own media is Zionist dominated or, at least, the profession of journalism is increasingly becoming the exclusive sphere of Jews and those who do their bidding.

Arab countries do not suffer this problem of having a media pandering to Zionist prejudice. Rather, they stand at the forefront of resisting Zionist encroachment in the Middle East, viewing the West suspiciously as American dominated and the ally of their worst enemy.

To be free of Zionist influence is the measure of true freedom and, insofar that the Islamic Republic of Iran defies all attempts by Israel to undermine the foundations of its society, then Jürgen Graf is guaranteed the freedom Europe would deny him.

Holocaust denial legislation is an anomaly in a society that claims a tradition of civil liberty. We know that all this nonsense about “democracy” is illusory and a sham.

Jürgen Graf: Freedom Fighter In Exile

“We Revisionists are willing to yield to arguments. But we are not willing to yield to brute force and terror. This we have in common with the Palestinian resistance fighters”

THE TEXT OF JÜRGEN GRAF'S OPEN LETTER TO EDWARD SAID

Dear Edward Said,

I am the head of the association, Verité et Justice, which planned to hold the Beirut Conference on "Revisionism and Zionism", together with the Institute of Historical Review. As you know, the conference was forbidden by the Lebanese government, which evidently yielded to American and Jewish pressure.

I am living in exile. If I went back to my native country, Switzerland, I would have to serve a fifteen months gaol sentence for Holocaust denial plus an additional sentence for things written since my condemnation. Several of my colleagues have also been sentenced to prison terms or are facing trial in the near future.

In Germany, hundreds of revisionists have been imprisoned for Holocaust denial. Other revisionists in several countries have been killed, driven to suicide, disfigured with acid, beaten up, sentenced to stiff fines, have had their professional careers ruined and been subjected to social ostracism because of media smear campaigns. To the best of my knowledge, not one of us has ever resorted to violence.

Jewish organisations are responsible for anti-revisionist legislation in several European countries (except Germany, where the survival of the entire elite hinges on its ability to keep the "Holocaust" story alive so that the German government did not need Jewish pressure to introduce an anti-revisionist law).

Why are we being persecuted? We are persecuted because we critically analyse the Jewish version of the Second World War and the "Holocaust". We are persecuted because we use our brains. We are persecuted because we have a conscience ... and because our conscience does not allow us to endorse monstrous exaggerations (like the six million figure) and downright lies (like the gas chamber story). Together with thirteen other Arab intellectuals, you, Mr Said, have signed a petition condemning revisionism and castigating the revisionists as "falsifiers of history".

What do you know about revisionism, Mr Said? Have you read Dissecting the Holocaust, which is the most important revisionist work? Have you read The Rudolf Report about the Auschwitz "gas chambers"? Have you studied Carlo Mattogno's work about the capacity of the Auschwitz crematoria? Have you studied John Ball's book, "Air Photo Evidence"? Have you studied Walter Sanning's demographic work, The Dissolution of Eastern European Jewry? Are you familiar with Arthur Butz's book, The Hoax of the Twentieth Century? Have you heard about Richard Krege's ground radar scanning on the site of the alleged "extermination camps", Belcez and Treblinka? If the answer to these questions is yes, I wonder why you have not publicly exposed the errors of the revisionists.

After all, if you accuse somebody of falsifying history, you should be able to prove this serious allegation.

But perhaps the answer to my question is no.

If this is the case, I wonder how you can condemn revisionism. I have never read any of your books – so what would you say if I called you a "lousy writer" and stated that your books are devoid of any literary value? Would you not be outraged and retort that someone unfamiliar with your works has no right to criticise them?

Should you condemn revisionism without knowing it, I would be forced to conclude that you are parroting the Zionist party line for purely opportunistic reasons. After all, the Jewish-controlled media hail you as a brilliant Palestinian intellectual and I assume your books are regularly reviewed and praised in The New York Times.

I would be forced to conclude that you collaborate with the oppressors of your people for the sake of your personal fame and your personal wealth.

Of course, you are perfectly aware of the fact that Israel would not exist without the "Holocaust". You know that the gas chamber story and the six million story permitted the Jews to embark on an anachronistic colonial adventure after 1945. You know that, but for the "Holocaust", the Palestinians would not have been robbed of their country/

If you condemn revisionism without knowing what it is all about, you are deliberately endorsing the lies of those who have stolen your land and who are killing unarmed Palestinians demonstrators day after day. In this case you are a despicable traitor to your people and to your country.

I hope this suspicion is unfounded. I hope your condemnation of revisionism is based upon your solid knowledge of the revisionist arguments and your ability to refute them. In this case, I urge you to publicly expose the deficiencies of revisionist research. Please prove that we are "falsifying history". Please refute Germar Rudolf's expertise. I earnestly entreat you to show us our errors.

If proven to be wrong, we will publicly apologise to the Jews.

I look forward to your answer.

Science and National Socialism

THE ROLE OF EUGENICS IN THE THIRD REICH

The eradication of genetic defects was a policy pursued by fourteen countries at the beginning of the last century. The most enthusiastic in this field was that great democracy, the United States of America, thirty of which states enacted sterilisation laws. Massachusetts and Michigan legally castrated young boys for "masturbation with weakness of mind" until an "enlightened" view of such matters substituted vasectomy. Channel Four's series, Science and The Swastika, emphasised the practice of eugenics in the Third Reich. But whose principles were the worst?

Justice Wendell Holmes of the US Supreme Court wrote in 1925, "It is better for all the world if, instead of waiting to execute degenerate offspring for crime or to let them starve for their imbecility, society can prevent those who are manifestly unfit from continuing their kind".

US laws also targeted the deformed, epileptic and alcoholic and these remained on the statute books up to the 1980s. In 1945 they were busy hanging German doctors for similar practices.

Far from having Nazi origins, "eugenics" was a term coined by an English Victorian, Sir Francis Galton, whose social Darwinism was determined by the differences between the rich and the poor. He had the misconceived idea that the pillars of society owed their positions to some hereditary, biological privilege.

Before exploring the role of eugenics under Hitler, we should remember that the philosopher, David Hume, compared the intelligence of Negroes to that of parrots and the Frenchman, Jean-Jacques Rousseau, regarded women as intellectually and emotionally inferior. American scientists, such as Samuel Cartwright, attributed Cachexia Africana (dirt eating) to Negroes, along with an insane desire to run away, termed Drapetomania. With the advent of Darwinism, there was now a law of nature and a law of God ... for the chosen. German exponents of eugenics rejected the Anglo-Saxon laissez-faire capitalistic, ruling class approach to social Darwinism and gave supreme consideration to the racial unit, the people as a whole. The altruistic motive of bettering the health of future generations was an agenda in opposition to the Anglo-Saxon use of science to keep "the lower orders and races" in their place.

At the turn of the twentieth century, the German eugenicist, Alfred Ploetz, called for a Rassenhygiene ... a racial hygiene for the improvement and welfare of an entire race. The enemies of racial hygiene were wars and revolution because they eradicated much of the fittest. Inbreeding and procreation by the very young and very old, along with alcoholism and disease were causes of racial degeneration. Ploetz advocated reducing unemployment, along with working hours, an end to child labour, and the creation of workers' co-operatives ... policies that contributed to a healthier race.

But those weaknesses in the race could only be permanently eradicated by selective human breeding. His was not the brutal survival of the fittest found in nature or the Malthusian struggle for existence but a concern for humane methods.

The aim of the new eugenics was "the prevention and conquest of diseases afflicting the entire human race, diseases from which each of the various races might suffer in similar manner".

Gerhard Wagner (right) leader of The Physicians League

When the National Socialists came to power in 1933, they inherited a scientific tradition unequalled in the rest of the world.

Out of the Gesellschaft für Rassenhygiene (Society for Racial Hygiene), founded by Ploetz and others, a social awareness of the health of the race as a whole found expression in other aspects of life. Efforts were made to establish rural colonies for unmarried mothers in order that they could raise healthy children in a clean environment. The Weimar socialist, Alfred Grotjahn, approved of many of the eugenicists' ideas and even went so far as advocating sterilisation in certain cases.

Eugenics was not an exclusively "right wing" interest as today's opponents claim. Shortly before the National Socialists came to power, the Communist Party (KPD) also supported sterilisation for certain mental cases, as did the Social Democrats (a Marxist party) through their paper Vorwärts. ... So less of the hypocrisy from today's Left!

Less known is the fact that Germany and the Soviet Union were joint sponsors of an Institute for Racial Biology set up in Moscow between 1931 and 1938 under the direction of the German eugenicists, Vogt and Aschoff.

From the outset, racial hygiene or eugenics was a progressive movement with one consideration in mind and continued to be so into the post-war world. The experiments in concentration camps had nothing to do with this movement, whatsoever.

In March 1933, Gerhard Wagner was appointed head of the National Socialist Physicians League in a co-ordination of professional organisations in the new state. This unification of function replaced the chaos of committee-led bodies pursuing differing goals. All aspects of the community were viewed holistically.

The publication of medical journals was expanded, with those in existence retaining the same staff. Social and racial matters were explored to a considerable depth. The most popular publication was Die Volksgesundheitswacht (People's Health Watch), running into 100,000 copies per edition, between 1934 and 1944.

In the German universities, racial hygiene became an obligatory subject with the eminent Fritz Lenz holding a professorship. For a student to graduate and begin medical practice, he had to pass a medical examination incorporating eugenics and racial hygiene.

In 1936, Gerhard Wagner appointed Dr Hermann Boehm to teach National Socialist eugenics at the Doctors' Führer School (SS Ärzteführerschule) in Mecklenburg.

This new field of medicine involved more than the day to day concerns for the individual's health in a purely curative way. It taught preventative measures for the entire community ... and not only for the generation in existence ... but for those yet to come into the world.

Dr Boehm noted that the goal of science must be to serve the people. By that he meant the people as an eternal manifestation of the nation.

On June 28th 1938, the Austrian biologist, Konrad Lorenz, joined the NSDAP and continued his studies on animal behaviour, comparing the domestication of animals with civilised people. He was working in Germany before the Anschluss with his native Austria and helped to promote racial hygiene through his research on animal behaviour. He worked for the Racial Political Office and was later appointed director of the Institute of Comparative Psychology at Königsberg University in 1940. His book, On Aggression, was a bestseller and in 1973 he travelled to Stockholm in Sweden to receive a Nobel Prize.

Lorenz was convinced that urban life contributed to a degenerative process and ceaselessly pursued the idea of racial betterment.

Nobel Prize winner, Konrad Lorenz

In October 1935, the National Socialists passed the Law for the Protection of the Genetic Health of the German People (Gesetz zum Schutze der Erbgesundheit des Deutschen Volkes), the most radical legislation concerning eugenics anywhere in the world.

Couples who wished to marry were required to undergo a medical examination. Marriage was forbidden to those suffering from mental defects, epilepsy, venereal disease and other genetic infirmities.

The genetically infirm were, however, permitted to marry others of similar affliction ... but only after being sterilised.

On the thorny subject of euthanasia, today it usually refers to "death with dignity" and a right of choice, the National Socialists embarked on something that was advocated in several other countries. In 1942, Dr Foster Kennedy wrote in the journal of the American Psychiatric Association calling for the killing of retarded children aged five and older, referring to "those hopeless ones who should never have been born ... nature's mistakes".

Dr Kennedy was not alone outside the events occurring in National Socialist Germany. Previously, in 1936, the inventor of the iron lung, American Nobel Prize winner, Alexis Carrel, advised in his book, Man the Unknown, "The criminal and insane should be humanely and economically disposed of in small euthanasia institutions supplied with proper gases".

When German doctors were on trial after the Second World War, there was a notable hush from certain American and British quarters. Channel Four's Science and the Swastika was also rather reticent in that respect.

RHE

Patriotic Right Coalition Ready For Power In Italy

A coalition of patriotic parties is hoping to unseat the present coalition of left-wing parties, including the communists, who have been in power in Italy for the past five years. Under this leftist government over 1.5million immigrants have been allowed to settle in Italy legally, with a further 500,000 entering illegally.

The illegals are being blamed by the Italian public for the massive increase in both serious and petty crime in inner city areas. The patriotic coalition comprises of three parties. The largest is the Forza Italia party led by media tycoon Silvio Berlusconi. Forza Italia were the major part of a coalition government for a short time between 1994 and 1995 and are seen by the Italian public as being strong on law and order. Mr Berlusconi recently visited London where he had a short meeting with the British Prime Minister, Tony Blair.

The other two partners in the coalition are Lega Nord, (The Northern League) led by Umberto Bossi and Alleanza Nazionale (National Alliance Party) led by the charismatic, Gianfranco Fini.

The coalition is fighting under the banner of the Freedom Alliance and has already been successful in local elections capturing over 50% of regional councils.

The Freedom Alliance has constantly campaigned about the dangers of mass immigration both legal and illegal that it says has been positively encouraged by the Socialist coalition government over the past five years and has promised strong measures to deter economic migrants and those that smuggle them into the country.

Italy's Socialists, desperate to cling on to power, have resorted to scaremongering tactics claiming that a Freedom Alliance victory could see sanctions imposed against Italy by the European Union similar to those imposed on Austria following the entry into government by the Austrian, Freedom Party of Jörg Haider.

To their delight, several senior members of the Church, including Cardinals, have given open support to the Freedom Alliance.

WALLONIA

Walloon nationalists failed to emulate the massive successes of their Flemish counterparts in recent provincial elections. The main French speaking party, Front National, managed to retain only six of the 80 seats they had captured in 1998. This poor result was partly blamed on a split within the FN, which mirrored that in France, and the emergence of a splinter FNB party. Unfortunately, FNB could only manage to win two seats. Another newcomer, Blok Walloon, failed to win any seats at all, despite being led by the vastly experienced former FN activist, George Hupin.

Jürgen Graf: The Persecution Continues

In our last issue we reported that historian, author and seeker of truth, Jürgen Graf had been forced to flee his native Switzerland and seek political asylum in Iran to escape a 15 month prison sentence imposed for questioning the authorised version of the Holocaust. We are disturbed to learn that the Simon Wiesenthal Centre, a powerful Jewish lobby group, has successfully demanded that the Swiss government issue an International Arrest Warrant, a measure normally used by INTERPOL, for the arrest and detention of serious criminals.

ISRAEL

British Citizen Tortured In Israel

A British citizen detained in Israel has been tortured by the Zionist authorities. The man, 32 year-old Jehard Shuman, arrived in Israel as a tourist after visiting Lebanon. He was promptly arrested and charged with being a supporter of the Palestinian group, Hezbollah. Shuman was held in solitary confinement and interrogated by the Israeli secret service. Following complaints from Britain, a doctor from the British foreign office was allowed to examine Shuman, and confirmed that he has suffered "physical maltreatment", a diplomatic euphemism for torture.

GERMANY

NPD March on Berlin

Over 2000 supporters of the German National Democratic Party, (NPD) took part in a march to protest at the proposal by the Federal government to have the party banned. The NPD march was led by party leader, Udo Voight, who was accompanied by a "Leader Guard" made up of young German girls and women. Police using water cannon quickly dispersed anti-democrats who attempted to stop the march. Young NPD activists are being blamed by the authorities for the 28% increase in racial attacks on foreign immigrants. NPD officials have vigorously denied the allegations.

The politically correct German authorities have been alarmed by a report released by the German internal security service (BVD) that not only is nationalism on the rise again in Germany but more women are joining the nationalist struggle than men.

The proportion of women to men in nationalist groups has increased to 30% in the eastern province of Thuringia, 30% in Lower Saxony and Hessen and 16% in the traditionally nationalist heartland of Bavaria. In addition to those joining male dominated political parties such as the NPD or its youth wing the Young National Democrats (JN), many female nationalists are establishing women only Kameradschaften. These are small groups where women can learn and refine political skills without having to compete with men.

The report also revealed that women from all sections of society were becoming politically active within these groups including nurses, lawyers and office workers. Crèches were also being established to encourage young mothers, married and single to become active.

The largest age group embracing nationalism is the 15-25 year olds.

The BVD report concludes that "although there are no women currently in leadership positions within the nationalist political spectrum, women are playing an ever more important part as organisers and propaganda promoters and we would expect women in the top echelon of nationalist politics within the next five years".

From our German Correspondent.

Nelson Mandela Attacks Jewish Racism

In an unprecedented memo to Thomas Friedman, a writer for The New York Times, former South African President, Nelson Mandela, personally declared war on the state of Israel. Free of the trappings of the Presidency of the Republic of South Africa, he is now speaking out against an old ally of the very apartheid system he once swore he was prepared to die opposing. The question is, why did he not make these statements when in the office of President?

We are realists. We do not live in the past nor dream of former days restored. That is why we are National Europeans and not "empire loyalists" of the kind bogged down in nostalgia. We recognise the world has changed for better or for worse in the last half century and, as such, the European people must look forward.

Nelson Mandela was once a convicted terrorist or, as the ANC would have it, a freedom fighter. It depends on your political perspective. He has gone through several incarnations since P.W. Botha offered him his freedom in 1989 and the Afrikaner, President F.W. de Klerk, shared a Nobel Peace Prize with him. That is now history and South Africa can not go back, whether we like it or not.

Mandela not only makes a case for the Palestinians, he also forthrightly accused the Zionists of practicing a form of apartheid, not just the system of separate development conceived by President Verwoerd but a system of oppression and persecution against the Arabs.

Part of the memo begins: "... You incorrectly think that the problem of Palestine began in 1967 ... you seem to be surprised to hear that there are still problems of 1948 to be solved. The most important component of which is the right to return of Palestinian refugees.

Palestinians are not struggling for a "state" but for freedom, liberation and equality ...

In the last few years Israel showed that it was not willing to return what it occupied in 1967; that settlements remain, Jerusalem would be under exclusive Israeli sovereignty and Palestinians would not have an independent state, but would be under Israeli economic domination ... with Israeli in control of borders, land, air, water and sea".

Mandela went on: "If you follow the polls in Israel for the last forty years, you find a vulgar racism, a third of the population who openly declare themselves to be racist. This racism is of the nature, "I HATE THE ARABS" and "I WISH ARABS WOULD BE DEAD".

Nelson Mandela further extrapolated on the reality of Israel's intention to keep the Jewish state Jewish. He pointed out that Palestinian property is not recognised as private property and can be confiscated.

He went on, "The so-called "Palestinian autonomous areas" are BANTUSTANS. These are restricted entities within the power structure of the Israeli apartheid system ... The Palestinian state cannot be the by-product of the Jewish state ... Palestinian Arabs have no place in a "Jewish" state.

Israel has systematically incarcerated and tortured thousands of Palestinians, contrary to the rules of International Law. IT HAS, IN PARTICULAR, WAGED A WAR AGAINST A CIVILIAN POPULATION, IN PARTICULAR, CHILDREN".

He finished his memo to Friedman with, "If you want to support racial discrimination and ethnic cleansing, WE WILL OPPOSE YOU".

The position of Jewish racism is not exclusively a Palestinian problem, however. Australian Jewish leader, Isi Leibler supports multi-culturalism in Australia but is opposed to it in Israel. This is typical double thinking on the part of many Jews throughout the world.

He once attacked Pauline Hanson for undermining multi-culturalism in Australia but then told an Israeli newspaper, "This (Israel) was set up as a Jewish country for the Jews".

The last word goes to Israel Shahak (above) who wrote, "Thus an Orthodox Jew learns from his earliest youth, as part of his sacred studies, that Gentiles are compared to dogs". Jewish History/Jewish Religion - Pluto Press 1994 [page94]

Book Review

They are out there somewhere

It is only a few months away from the silly season so a tongue-in-cheek book on paranoid conspiracy theories would serve to enliven our interest in matters concerning loonies and secret societies. The latest from investigative journalist, Jon Ronson, is seductively entitled, Them: Adventures with Extremists, and treads the familiar path that aficionados of this genre find so appealing. If you are bored with The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion then this could be amusing reading for those barmy days in a deckchair on a beach in somewhere like Ramsgate.

Ronson has been acclaimed as a serious reporter and film maker and is unperturbed by the prospect of donning the garb of a Klansman in order to go undercover. Unlike many other media investigators, Ronson does not take his mission too seriously with the result that Them: Adventures with Extremists is almost on a par with a Tom Sharpe novel.

Those who surf the Internet are by now familiar with a plethora of "international cabals" cooked up by the demented of various persuasions, some even insisting the world is run by a secret oligarchy of 12ft lizards.

Of course, we do not believe in any such nonsense; we are far too intelligent.

But his intrepid incursions with such colourful characters as the right wing investigator, Big Jim Tucker, including their attempts to infiltrate a meeting of The Bilderberg Group, do not always have a comical twist.

Ronson and Big Jim Tucker are disturbed and pursued by the ubiquitous and armed security agents. Beefy types identified by their dark suits, cropped hair and dark glasses ... and "out to kick ass" as some Americans put it so whimsically. This is the real stuff and not some fabled den of rabbis plotting to poison the municipal water supply. For Ronson, the Bilderberg incident is so distressing that he seeks refuge with the British Embassy.

Bilderberg-watchers such as we could have warned him but thanks anyway, Jon, for confirming at least one credible "conspiracy theory" (see League Sentinel - issue 46).

Ronson is fairly even-handed in his treatment of the case of the Weaver family in mid-West Idaho, that haven of Christian militias defending their folk from ZOG or the Zionist Occupational Government. Mrs Weaver and her young son were shot dead by the gung-oh FBI in what has been described as an over-reaction ... a heavily armed raid that would have put Bruce Willis and Arnie Schwarzenegger to shame. Ronson claims that their deaths were caused by a media hype labelling the Weavers as "white supremacists" and, therefore, their deaths were "deserved". Ronson questions this cold-blooded justification for what amounts to murder.

Author, Jon Ronson, goes "undercover"

Inevitably the case of David Icke, one-time footballer and now the Son of God, crops up in one chapter. He is an exponent of the theory that giant lizards are taking over the world with Elizabeth II and Edward Heath as strong contenders as lizards in human form. I have heard Peter Mandelson referred to as a "reptile" ... but then he has been called a lot of things.

Icke is fond of quoting The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, which does not go down too well with the local B'nai Brith in the locale where Icke addresses audiences. The accusations of anti-Semitism are inevitable but these do not deter the new Messiah. Of course, David Icke is barking mad but Jews do themselves no favours by taking the former BBC commentator so seriously that they have to harass him at every venue he can find to address.

NEW FROM STEVEN BOOKS

"My Awakening"

by David Duke

My Awakening is more than just a biography. It is a book that dares to confront the most challenging issues of modern times. David Duke devotes most of the book to his views on race and its implications for society and evolution. These alone promise to raise tremendous controversy and could change the very course of history. 718 pages. Hardback.
